NEW QUESTION: 2

How does GDPR regulate this specific case?

A woman uses the services of a gym in the city where she lives. Yet she will move to another town. So, she requests the current gym to transfer all her data, exercises, eating plans, physical evaluations, etc. to another gym in the new town.

- A. The current gym should provide the data to her.
- B. The gym of the new town should get in contact with the gym and request the data.
- C. The current gym is not obliged to answer the holder request, because this could jeopardize the secret of its business.
- D. The current gym should send all her data directly to the new gym.

Answer: D

Explanation:

The Article 20 of GDPR establishes the Right to data portability.

The second paragraph mentions:

In exercising his or her right to data portability pursuant to paragraph 1, the data subject shall have the right to have the personal data transmitted directly from one controller to another, where technically feasible.

However, it is worth noting that the paragraph 1 of this article mentions:

The data subject shall have the right to receive the personal data concerning him or her, which he or she has provided to a controller, in a structured, commonly used and machine-readable format...

The utterance explains that she requested that the data was transferred, that is why the correct answer is "The current gym should send all her data directly to the new gym." (B) Yet she has the right to request her own data, so if the utterance was referenced in that way, the correct answer would be: "The current gym should provide the data to her." (D)
